CORE MODEL PORTFOLIO

To provide a balance of income and moderate capital growth through exposure to a broad range of asset classes

INVESTMENT OBJECTIVE & APPROACH

The objective of the Core Model Portfolio, over the medium term, is to achieve an above inflation return through a combination of income and capital growth. Equities are the main asset class and the model portfolio will seek to achieve rewards well ahead of inflation in periods of strong equity markets, but will experience periods of volatility and will be exposed to equity market falls.

The model portfolio will invest in ETFs and other collective funds, as well having scope to use structured investments. This provides a high degree of flexibility to allow the manager to implement any tactical view. The manager's approach is to provide their own tactical overlay and therefore in most cases passive instruments are used to minimise cost. However active managers are considered for each sector and used in a minority of cases where it is felt justified. The firm's investment philosophy advocates complementing a core of traditional assets with exposure to value stocks and smaller companies. Within equities, a global approach is taken with only a moderate UK bias. For alternative investments, lowly correlated, liquid funds are used. There is an absolute focus on risk management, to attempt to control volatility, minimise draw-downs and enable maximisation of risk adjusted returns.

MODEL PORTFOLIO POSITIONING

We are monitoring geopolitical tensions closely. The sanctions levied by the US on Russian companies were unexpected, as was compelling non-US citizens and business to enforce the sanctions. In an additional act of aggravation, which has slipped under the radar of mainstream media, the White House attempted to incense China (on top of trade tariffs) by permitting US defence contractors to sell Taiwan the technology to build its own nuclear submarines – a breakthrough in Taiwan's long-standing ambitions to build up its fleet to counter the threat from Beijing. We remain underweight traditional fixed income, underweight equities – specifically US equities – and have no investments in property. We prefer: alternative investments, such as absolute return strategies and physical gold; specific equity regions, such as France, Japan and Emerging Markets; and short duration, alternative fixed income funds, such as those with exposure to asset backed securities. This reflects our view that central banks are keen to tighten monetary supply in 2018, pushing fixed income yields higher at a time when fixed income and equities are expensive.
